Our Men In Korea

Everybody has read descriptions of the fighting in Korea, and appraisals of the quality of the present American Army as contrasted with that of the Chinese. But there has been a lack of first-hand accounts by men with authoritative military backgrounds. That lack is brilliantly remedied in the August issue of Harper's magazine by Colonel S. L. A. Marshall, a distinguished student and historian of warfare. Colonel Marshall's article is happily entitled "Our Army in Korea — The Best Yet" and is an adaptation of a series of reports which first appeared in the Detroit News.

Korea is almost incredibly bleak and difficult. Colonel Marshall quotes a GI saying which runs, "God got tired when He was making the world. Hence Korea." The weather is vile and here are many precipitous heights. Colonel Marshall writes, "Eighty per cent of the heavy fighting is done uphill. It has to be done that way, for the enemy uses the high ground to interdict with automatic fire our advance along the low ground. . . . In Korea the average infantry company climbs all day to reach the top and fight all night. If that ridge falls, there is always the next one, with another enemy band dug in along its crest."

Colonel Marshall—who went to Korea in November, stayed until March, and observed the war all the way from top headquarters down to line regiments—has small respect for the quality of Communist forces or their organization. Their success he ascribes to sheer weight of manpower.

Finally, Colonel Marshall deals with the quality of the American Army which has been forged in Korea—and this is an all-important matter regardless of future developments and changes in the Korean situation. It has become a tough and splendid Army, which knows its business, can accept and deal with severe hardships without whining, has high morale and great pride in itself.

Letters To The Editor

Traverse City, Mich.
August 13, 1951

The Editor,
Crawford County Avalanche

I would appreciate very much your publishing this letter of Thanks to all the men who turned out and assisted in digging out my son-in-law Jesse Smith, last Sunday when he was buried by the walls of a well pit caving in on him at my cabin on County Road 612 eight miles west of Frederic.

While I knew some of the men there that worked so diligently, most of them I do not know and when Jesse was finally removed from the hole I did not get a chance to express my thanks.

I want to express both Jesse's and my thanks to Dr. Stanley Stealey, Ted Griebel, Jack and Roy Millikin, Conservation Officers, The Sheriff, the State Police and just everybody that was there and did such a swell job and though I can't name all, I do want all to feel that these thanks are just as personal as to those that are named.

Jesse came out of his experience in remarkably good condition and is showing no ill after effects, and all that I can say is Thank You and THANK GOD.

Thankfully Yours,
Howard Barton

Michigan Mirror
Non-Partisan
News Letter

Top Michigan Republicans who attended the annual picnic of Oakland County's Republican Women, Young Republicans and Lincoln Clubs, heard a scathing rebuke of a "starmant party" from Recorder's Judge W. McKay Skillman.

"The papers are full of the Fair Deal appearances of Gov. Williams and Democratic Senator Moody," Skillman said, "but who is heard in opposition?"

"Continuance of a subservient, docile, anemic and 'me-too' Republican Party can result only in a one-party system of government and that would end our liberties as we know them."

Skillman said he spoke freely now because he was not and would not be a candidate for partisan political office.

In Skillman's audience were State Chairman Owen J. Cleary; National Committeewoman Rae Hooker; of Mt. Pleasant; Auditor General John B. Martin, Jr.; Republican candidate for the Senate; Treasurer D. Hale Brake; Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler, and United States Rep. George A. Dondero, of Royal Oak.

Michigan's National Guard is at camp — at a cost of some $2,000,000. The expense of keeping our citizen army trained and up-to-date on modern warfare runs $18.41 per day during the two-week stay for each of the nearly 7,000 guardsmen in field training.

Maj. Gen. Ralph A. Loveland, guard commander, told the men, "get the most out of your training activities...it's taxpayers' money that pays for all this...."

Michigan's taxes always are news. The joint legislative committee considering the state's muddled taxation system and mounting deficit (a projected $75,000,000 by June, 1955) has asked for suggestions from a citizen advisory committee. The citizen committee requests more information.

The legislative group states: The tax structure is full of inequities...either more money is needed, the present money must be better distributed or state spending must be reduced.

County fairs are experiencing a banner year. A general 10 percent increase in attendance over last year is the average report by fair officials.

Work on the new state office building is going ahead on schedule. Houses on the block-square plot West of the Capitol building are being razed and the site prepared for digging. What will be housed in the new building? The only sure bet is that the Highway and Conservation departments and Civil Service Commission will win berths in the modern structure.

Conservation Department experts predict a record-breaking number of fishermen this year. They expect dealer sales returns to exceed the 1,056,080 resident and non-resident permits sold last year.

Permits to hunt deer in the special December seasons are being distributed to license dealers.

Those intending to hunt deer of either sex December 1-5 in the Northeastern cherry country, or antlerless deer December 1-10 in Allegan county must hold a permit in addition to the regular license.

An above average yield per acre for all Michigan field crops has been predicted by the federal-state crop reporting service. Yield for hay and potatoes may be the highest on record.

There are 40,000 Federal employees in Michigan. Divided by 83, it works out to nearly 500 Federal employees per county. What on earth can they find to do?

Pollo the crippler is with us again—or yet. According to health department officials this looks like an "average year," as no epidemics have been reported. They said 416 cases have been reported in the state thus far. There were 360 cases in the same period last year; 687 in 1949. The 1950 total was 2,029 cases.
